President's Message

Through this annual report, we want to share with you the progress Lenoir-Rhyne College made during the 1987-88 academic year. And what a year it was!

It was a year in which our Board of Trustees approved the largest capital gifts campaign not only in the history of Lenoir-Rhyne, but also in the history of the Catawba Valley.

It was a year in which a comprehensive long-range planning process was implemented, producing plans which will carry the college well into the 21st century.

And it was a year in which the college produced another outstanding class of graduates, ready to make positive contributions to their communities, churches and professions.

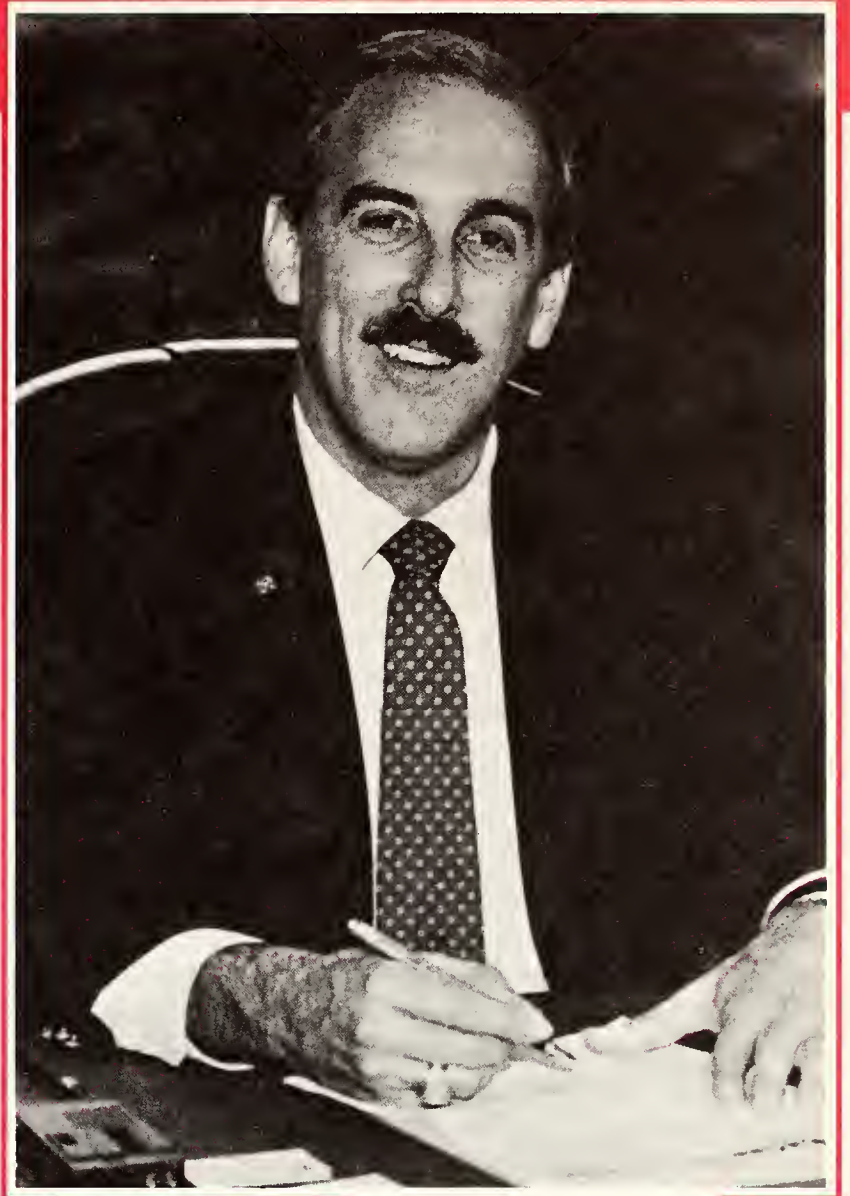

It, indeed, was one of the most exciting, and challenging, years in the history of Lenoir-Rhyne College. The progress and accomplishments we achieved during the year have laid a solid foundation for one of our major goals: to become one of the best liberal arts institutions in the country.

The long-range planning process and Centennial Campaign go hand-in-hand in helping us reach that goal. The plan offers direction for both short-term and long-term campus needs and objectives, and the campaign will help provide many of the resources needed to fully implement the plan.

We've set a tentative goal of $24 million for the Centennial Campaign. That figure, while ambitious, is realistic and will allow the college to improve and expand such areas as instructional programs, faculty development, student life and the physical plant, plus many more. A successful campaign assures the college will enter its second century of excellence in education well poised to provide even more opportunities and services to the students and to the community.

To find out more details about the Centennial Campaign, I hope you'll read the special campaign section of this annual report. I also hope you'll read each section that details administrative and academic areas of the college. We're proud of the many accomplishments—some small, some large—we have achieved as a family in 1987-88.

Those accomplishments would not have taken place without the hard work and dedication of everyone associated with Lenoir-Rhyne College. I'm especially proud of the faculty, administration and staff. These exceptional people are deeply committed to the college and its mission, and without that commitment, we could not have enjoyed the success we attained during the past year.

I also want to thank you—our alumni, friends and board members—for your efforts on behalf of the college in 1987-88. Your commitment, too, is vital to our success and deeply appreciated.

It, indeed, was a great year for Lenoir-Rhyne College. But there is much more to be done. More goals to reach. I'm confident, though, that with your help and support, we will reach those goals.

Academic Affairs

Lenoir-Rhyne College has a long tradition of providing a quality liberal arts education, and this tradition will continue into the second century of our college's history.

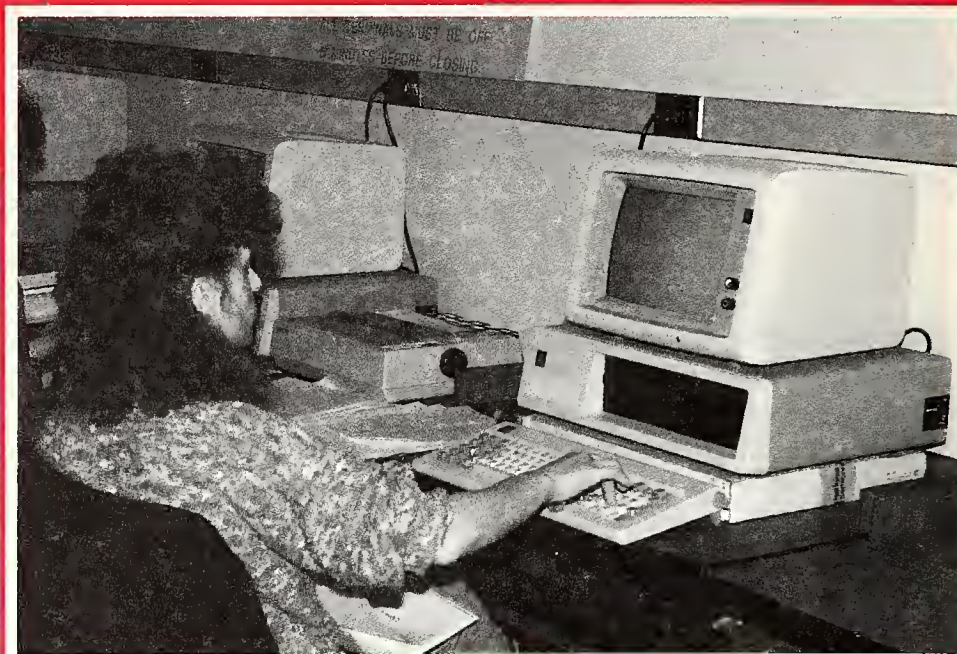

At the heart of the academic program are two major components—the curriculum and the faculty. Lenoir-Rhyne is blessed with quality curricula—core and disciplinary—and a quality faculty.

Looking back on 1987-88 and projecting into 1988-89, several curricular matters are worth mentioning. In an ever increasing effort to broaden our students' educational experiences, the college has experienced the development of more internship opportunities for students to gain first-hand practical experience in their major field. Joining the Departments of Business, Sociology/Psychology and Religion (Christian Education), who have been at the forefront in providing internship experiences, several other departments have developed, or are developing, strong internship programs. These include the Departments of Computer Science, Communication and Chemistry. Experiential education opportunities are becoming more and more accepted as valid and worthwhile learning experiences.

The college has entered into an affiliation agreement with the University of Evansville (Indiana) to provide a new overseas study experience for Lenoir-Rhyne students. Under this agreement, Lenoir-Rhyne will be able to send up to 20 students (from any major) and one or two faculty members each fall to Harlaxton College in Grantham, England, for a full semester of study.

Students will be able to choose from a wide variety of courses applicable to core curriculum and/or to their major requirements. Courses are taught in English, making it possible for students who are not language majors to also participate in an overseas study experience. The first Lenoir-Rhyne group went to Harlaxton College this fall and was accompanied by Dr. Thomas Thies, assistant professor of business.

Acting on a proposal from the Department of Art/Theatre Arts/Communication, the Faculty Assembly and the Board of Trustees approved a new major in visual-arts education. This new major, available for the first time this fall, will allow students to study and train to become teachers of the visual arts. The new Basic Education Plan in North Carolina calls for public schools to employ hundreds of art teachers over the next few years, and this new major should provide exciting teaching employment opportunities for a number of Lenoir-Rhyne graduates.

Addressing the need to assist entering students make the transition from high school to college, Lenoir-Rhyne this year again will offer what has become an important course for freshmen—GEN 110, Freshman Seminar. This course, taught by experienced and dedicated fac-cent of all entering freshmen students elected to enroll in GEN 110. Of this group, 98 percent returned for the 1988 spring semester. Of the remaining 25 percent of the freshmen who did not take this course, only 67 percent returned for the spring semester.

In 1987-88, the student body took the initiative, with assistance from selected members of the faculty and administration, to develop an Academic Integrity System and Honor Code. This proposed program was endorsed by the faculty, administration and Board and became effective for all students this fall.

A decision was made to separate the computer science major program from the Math Department and to create a new Department of Computer Science.

ulty and staff members, is offered each fall semester on a voluntary enrollment basis to entering freshmen students. The course carries one hour of academic credit, meets one time each week, and deals with such topics as time management; effective study skills; stress management; academic, career, and personal planning; college resources available to students; social adjustment to college; and many more.

Retention data suggest the significance of this course. In fall 1987, 75 per-

This change became effective in the 1988 fall semester and brings to 17 the number of academic departments.

Lifelong education at Lenoir-Rhyne has taken on added significance in recent years. The college offers credit and non-credit programs to non-traditional students. Non-credit offerings include seminars, workshops, Elderhostel programs, sports camps and others for a wide variety of age and interest groups. The credit phase of lifelong education is offered through the Evening College.

Begun in 1981, Evening College provides an opportunity for working adults to return to college in the evenings to work toward a degree in one of five majors—accounting, business administration, education, computer science and psychology. We are pleased to have as our new associate dean for Lifelong Education, Ms. Shirley Rawley. Shirley comes to us with a tremendous experience in administering lifelong-education programs. She developed similar programs at High Point College and has had experience at Wake Forest University and Mary Baldwin College. Under her leadership, look for great developments in lifelong education at Lenoir-Rhyne.

We continue to attract and retain a quality faculty. In 1988-89, we will have 95 full-time faculty and approximately 20 part-time adjunct faculty. Of the full-time faculty, 41 are full professors, 27 associate professors, 25 assistant professors, and two instructors. Thirty-nine percent of the full-time faculty are females.

Rhyne faculty. In 1970-71, only about 30 percent of the faculty held the doctorate. In 1988-89, almost 70 percent of our faculty will hold the doctorate or other appropriate terminal degree. About 62 percent of our faculty are tenured. This places us in approximately the top third of our sister ELCA colleges in terms of percentage of tenured faculty. This Lenoir-Rhyne tenure percentage has

We continue to attract and retain a quality faculty. In 1988-89, we will have 95 full-time faculty and approximately 20 part-time adjunct faculty. Of the full-time faculty, 41 are full professors, 27 associate professors, 25 assistant professors, and two instructors. Thirty-nine percent of the full-time faculty are females.

The college lost, due to retirement, the teaching expertise of Professor Fran Fitz (business) and Dr. David Chou (chemistry). These two beloved faculty members can never be truly replaced; however, we have successfully recruited nine highly qualified new or replacement faculty. These faculty have strong credentials and are dedicated to quality, undergraduate teaching. They, along with the returning faculty, will maintain high academic standards and will be a vital and welcomed part of the Lenoir-Rhyne community.

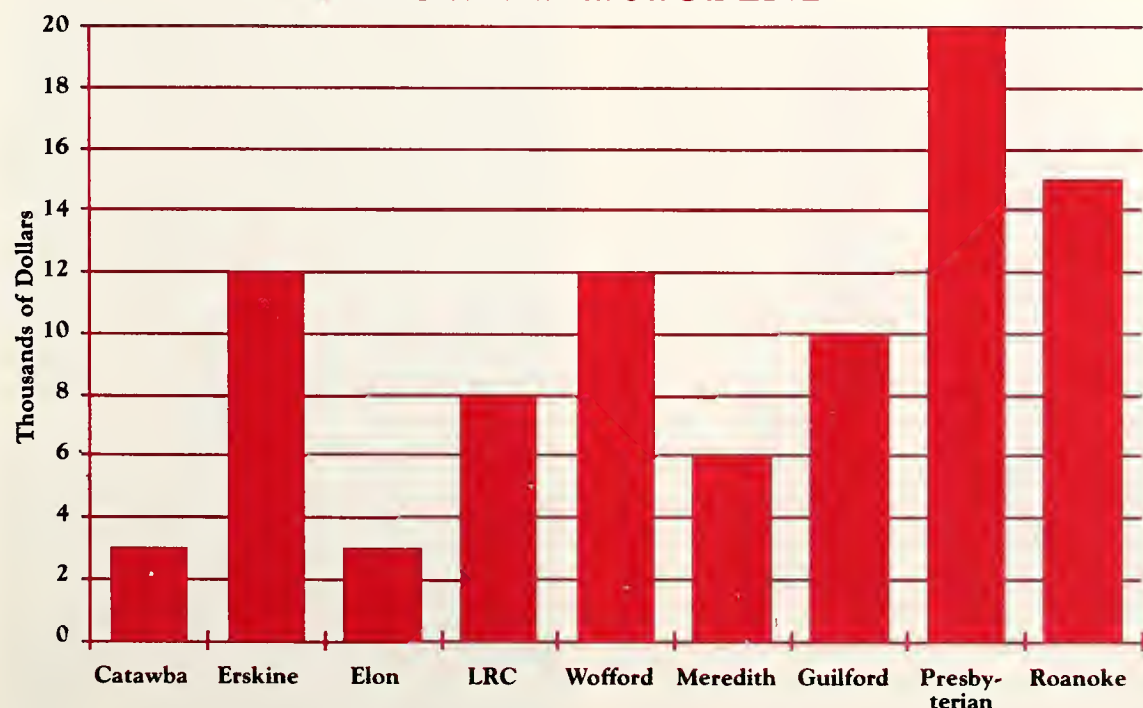

Significant strides have been made in upgrading the credentials of the Lenoirdropped from a high of about 76 percent in 1984 to its present level.

Faculty development continues to be an important issue at Lenoir-Rhyne. Recognizing that, to remain effective, our faculty must be able to engage in professional growth activities, the College has devoted more resources for various developmental opportunities. In 1987-88, seven Lenoir-Rhyne College faculty were granted professional development leaves; in 1988-89, six more will have these leave opportunities. Faculty continue to be provided funds to attend professional meetings/workshops and, this year, will have several in-service training opportunities to discuss topics such as improving college teaching, dealing with student learning disabilities, and assessing institutional effectiveness.

During 1988-89, the faculty and administration will be involved in reviewing the core curriculum, developing long-range planning, assessing the effectiveness of our educational process and programs, and formulating programs to deal more effectively with learning disabilities of some of our students.

Admissions

The number of applications at Lenoir-Rhyne continues to increase, defying national demographic trends and the experience of some other colleges.

Residential halls once again are filled at the maximum level. The admissions staff continues to field a strong team, with Karen Blume and Jeff Greer joining Dick Thompson as long-time members. Laurie Dunton and David Keck returned for their second years, and newcomers Brad Haerle and Scott Randall began work in August. Each person is assigned a specific territory and will be completing college-night programs and high school visits during the fall.

The Blitz programs (student receptions) increasingly have become more important. Three members of the admissions staff—and, in many cases, administrators, faculty and students—attended 22 programs in cities from Miami to northern New Jersey. Alumni, parents and a team of college students telephone every senior and his or her family with a personal invitation to attend a Blitz.

Attendance improved 16 percent from the 1987 programs. Of the 114 students who attended, applied and were accepted, 76—or 67 percent—have enrolled for the fall term. Seventy-one percent of the seniors who attended applied for admission.

Additionally, 34 students who attended the 1987 programs have been accepted. In other words, almost one of every three freshmen attended a Blitz program.

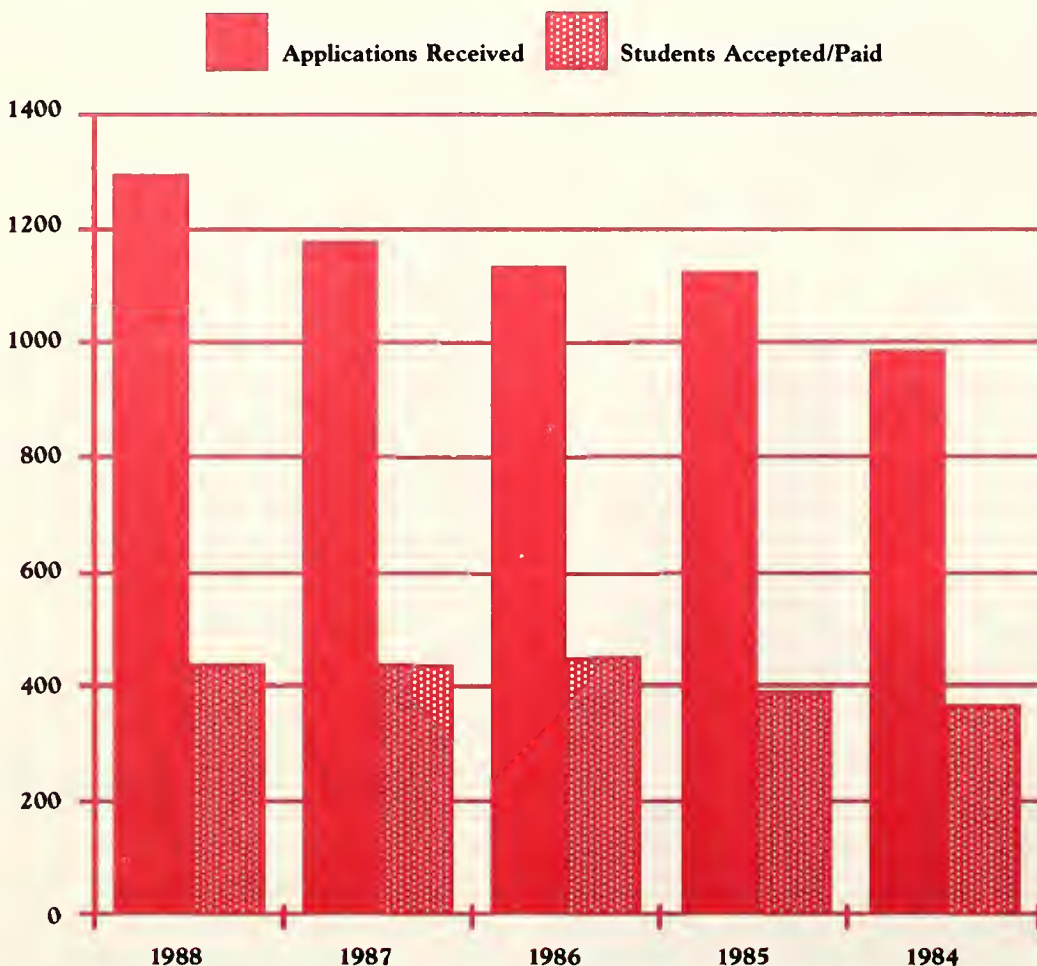

Admissions Data For 1987-88

- Freshmen applications were up 17 percent from 1986-87.
- A total of 1,319 inquiries resulted from the College Board Search; 25 of these enrolled.
- More than 17,000 prospective students were on the admissions mailing list.
- More than 120 honors students applied.
- SAT scores sent to L-R by prospective students increased 6 percent. The total increase from 1982-83 was 112 percent.

GROWTH IN APPLICATIONS

The Student Life Department has been moving on a number of fronts to enhance services to our students and to build on a developmental framework for stimulating students to grow and learn outside the classroom. Our activities have been broad and comprehensive, and have added an important supplement to the basic services we provide.

Led by Mike Riley, we have continued to be involved in the leadership of the Freshman Seminar. This "adjustment-to-college" course has provided a much-needed transition to college life for our freshmen. Everything from the emotional impact of moving away from home to where to get tutors is discussed in an organized and comprehensive manner. Most of all, bridges of caring are built for our new students, giving Lenoir-Rhyne an even more humane and personal dimension. In fact, the success of the Freshman Seminar has prompted Student Life to attempt to assess the developmental needs of the sophomore year and to attempt to offer services to meet those needs. This will be a focus of the coming year.

One addition that has been of great value to our students this past year was the addition of a part-time person in the Career Development Center to coordinate part-time and summer employment. This position was very ably filled by Linda McFarland. Unfortunately, Mrs. McFarland moved to Asheville this summer. Her position will be filled by Suzanne Gunter, who holds a master's degree in student personnel services and is no stranger to Lenoir-Rhyne. Margie Scott reports that 924 job referrals were made through this position, and an estimated $115,320 was earned by our students through their part-time employment. This is of great assistance to our students as they attempt to meet their financial needs and as they learn more about the working environment.

Bridges of caring are built for our new students, giving Lenoir-Rhyne an even more humane and personal dimension.

A Greek Task Force met this year to try to determine better ways of mutual reinforcement between those organizations and Lenoir-Rhyne. After hours of long work, a report delivered to the president recommended ways to improve the relationship between the organizations and the college. Among other recommendations was one that we invite Kappa Sigma sorority to re-colonize on the campus. This will bring to four the number of Greek women's organizations on campus. We are design of this national conference and, along with Jerry Shaw and three students, was a participant in the first conference in September.

Perhaps the most altruistic and exotic of the activities that have occurred in Student Life have been in conjunction with the Habitat for Humanity. This looking forward to welcoming Kappa Sigma back to Lenoir-Rhyne in some capacity this academic year.

The Broyhill Family Foundation gave a grant to Student Life to enhance our student leadership program. This grant has made possible the building of higher quality programs for our students and for reaching a greater number of students. Emphasis for the next academic year will be on our retreats, special mentoring of individual students (especially sophomores) and additional resources for leadership training. Of note in the area of leadership is the initiation of the First Annual National Lutheran Leadership Conference in Minneapolis at the Hubert H. Humphrey Center. Dean Lewis was intimately involved in the conception and year, 18 students went to two sites in Guatemala to build houses with Habitat. Three weeks were spent mixing cement, making block, eating black beans, sleeping on floors, living with Guatemalan families, and traveling around that beautiful and hospitable country. Students experienced not only the poverty, sickness and hardships of the third world, but also the joy of serving others, the commonality of the human journey, and the exhilaration that comes with loving God through our fellowman.

Able co-led by Professor Robert Eckard of the Spanish Department, the trip has received rave reviews from the participants, who seem inclined to want to continue the program next year.

The Chaplain's Office, through the Chaplain's Council, has done similar service work domestically with the initiation of a number of "Washington Ventures." These are working visits by Lenoir-Rhyne teams to Luther House in Washington, D.C., to manage a center for the homeless. Students have been visibly affected by this experience, as they attempt to reconcile this difficult reality with the words of Christ, "Blessed are the poor..." Together, the Habitat trips and the Washington Ventures are providing important, practical insights into the world in which our students must live out their faith.

Not at all last, but in its developing phases, we have attempted to emphasize minority concerns on campus. Louise Rose, a black theologian and singer, was on the campus this winter specifically to help us ascertain the needs of our black students and to help address them. In addition, Dr. Robert Albright, president of Johnson C. Smith University in Charlotte, gave a very exciting address to our students, relating his experiences on his trip to South Africa.

Two sessions of the Greek Task Force were spent in trying to determine the social needs of black students and ways of enhancing their experience at Lenoir-Rhyne. This is a continuing area of concern and will be receiving additional attention in the future.

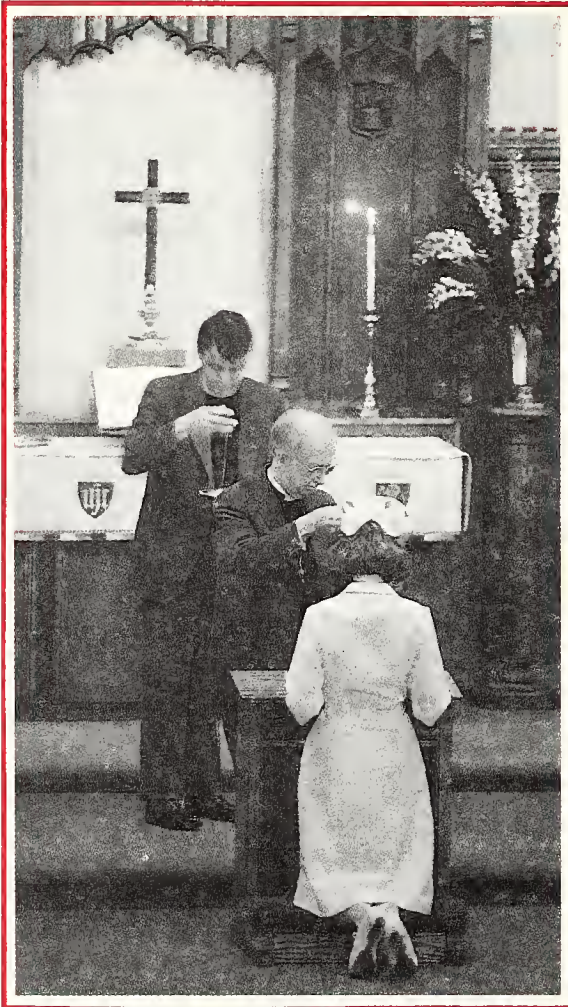

Though our staff is small, we continue to work to be innovative, to meet the changing needs of our students and to actualize the motto of the college, "a community of learning."

Spiritual Life

Ours is a Christian learning community. Events of the last year make that claim stronger than ever. The spirit of Christ and a community of caring are both alive and growing. Lenoir-Rhyne continues to be a good place to live and learn.

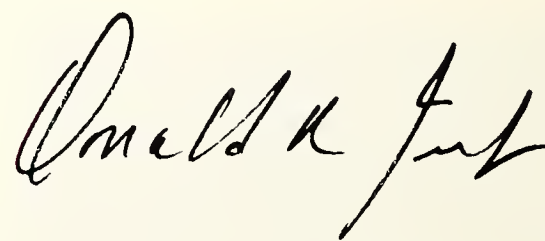

The Long-Range Planning Committee spent much of the year re-examining the college mission statement. Discussion frequently centered on ways the college might be even more intentional in both its church-relatedness and "conviction that wholeness of personality, true vocation, and the most useful service to God and the world are best discerned from within the perspective of Christian faith." It was gratifying and affirming to observe overwhelming consensus about the importance of a meaningful spiritual posture.

The on-campus worship activities continue to show steady growth. Chapel attendance has risen 20 percent each of the past three years. A larger number of students, staff and faculty are making Wednesday chapel a regular event. Singing, the lessons of the week and prayers for the community are the centerpieces of the worship experience.

Five religious organizations have emerged as centers for student-led Bible study, service and fellowship. The Baptist Student Union, the Catholic-Newman Club, the Fellowship for Christian Athletes, Fools for Christ (Clown Ministry) and Lutheran Student Movement have provided banners for students desiring either denominational identity or a particular kind of spiritual expression. Able student leaders, advised by committed faculty, make that happen.

The most unobtrusive indicator of a spiritual base may finally be the best evidence of spiritual vitality. It is the way concern for one another is constantly expressed. News about individual illness or loss of a loved one quickly spreads and brings responses of help and concern. A wonderful spirit motivates these responses. Visitors speak of feeling it, and we who live and work here know it to be "in, with and under" all we do. A Christian learning community is a claim we see lived out daily.

Academics is only one of the changes Lenoir-Rhyne experienced with the SAC-8 over the past year. League presidents voted to expand the conference to a comprehensive, all-sports format, and a new constitution is near completion. It is hoped the "new" SAC-8 will be organized and competitive by the 1989-90 school year.

few years, turned in a 7-4 season, the best since 1975. The Bears fielded an exciting, well-balanced offense, accounting for almost 300 points and setting school records in first downs and passing yards.

In soccer, the Bears posted a 7-7-2 record under new head coach Tom Melville. Melville, a native of Northern Ireland, is bringing in an outstanding recruiting class and is excited about the team's future.

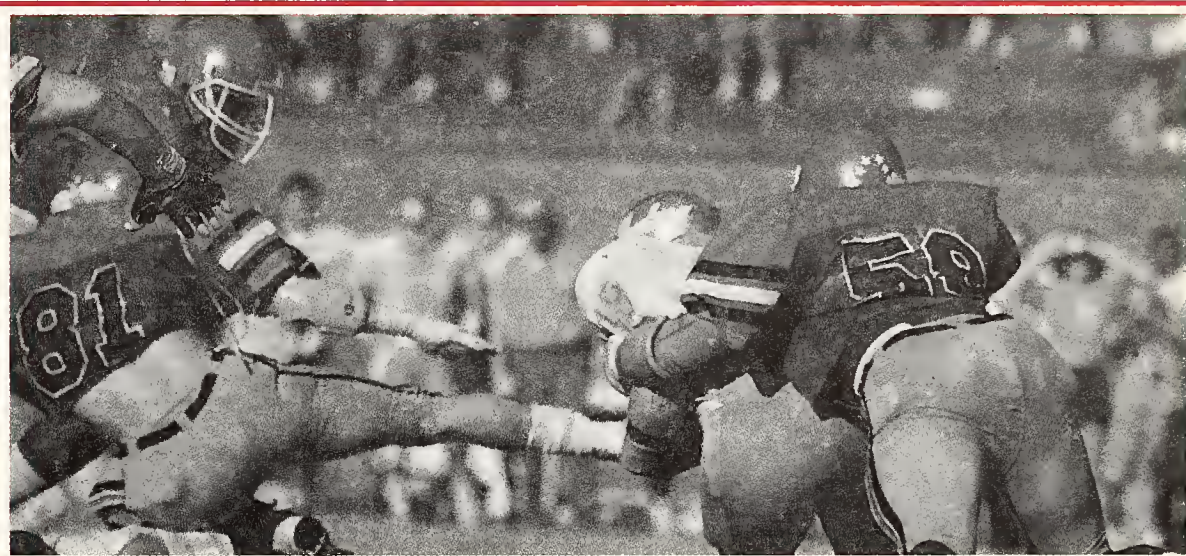

Throughout the 1980s, college athletics has undergone a variety of changes, with academics—primarily entrance requirements and normal progress to graduation—heading the list. While the NCAA took a lead in this area with Proposition 48, the NAIA was soon to follow.

Lenoir-Rhyne saw the trend toward more sound academics as a platform on which to stand. President John Trainer was instrumental in developing an academic-requirement clause adopted by the South Atlantic Conference (SAC-8), a clause which served as a model for the NAIA's own entrance and normal-progress rule. In fact, the SAC-8 rule is tougher than the NAIA requirement in some areas, and the conference voted to abide by the more stringent SAC-8 guidelines.

Lenoir-Rhyne takes increasing pride in the quality of its student-athletes. Graduation rates among Bear athletes

What's in store for Lenoir-Rhyne athletics? Questions over district alignment of the SAC-8 in the NAIA have stirred some thought of possible realignment with NCAA Division II. Lenoir-Rhyne has applied for membership in NCAA Division II with intentions of competing as a dual affiliate (NCAA & NAIA). Depending on which course the SAC-8 takes as a league, Lenoir-Rhyne will be in position to adjust.

Lenoir-Rhyne's athletic program showed a number of bright spots in the past year and is poised for continued improvement in the years to come.

The fall sports—football, soccer, and volleyball—enjoyed the most successful seasons in the Bear program last year. The Lady Bear volleyball team captured its first Carolinas Conference and District 26 titles and advanced to the NAIA Tournament in Milwaukee, WI. It marked the first time since 1980 that a Lenoir-Rhyne team had advanced to national play.

The football team, which has shown continued improvement over the last

The men's basketball team continues to build under Bear alumnus John Lentz. The Bears showed great improvement over the previous season and lose just one senior for the second year in a row.

Added emphasis in the spring sports is beginning to show. The women's tennis team posted its first winning season in the '80s this past spring, and the men's squad returns its entire group from a year ago. Head baseball coach John Hamilton enters his second year with an outstanding recruiting class on which to build.

Lenoir-Rhyne believes the quality of an athletic program hinges on the quality of the student-athletes who participate. As the college approaches its centennial celebration, student-athletes will continue to distinguish themselves as leaders in the classroom, as well as on the field and court.

Financial Affairs

In the past year, the college has further strengthened its business practices and—through attention to computing in the Business Office—has moved to assure that accurate and timely information is available for financial-management purposes.

A combination of factors has made it increasingly difficult to prepare a balanced budget while providing the kinds of services for which Lenoir-Rhyne is known. Like many institutions, an aging plant provides a constant challenge. Fixed costs, such as medical coverage, utilities, telephone charges and insurance, continue to rise. We also have had increased need for student financial aid as we continue to provide the opportunity for the traditional Lenoir-Rhyne student to attend.

During the current fiscal year, 1988-89, the college will be operating with a $14,100,000 operating budget. This represents an overall 27 percent increase in the college's operating budget over a four-year period. During 1985-86, the college expended $11,035,000; this 27 percent increase represents a 6.75 percent average annual increase in expenditures. This increase in expenditures over the four-year period provided for a real dollar increase in expenditures, assuring that Lenoir-Rhyne could recruit and retain an excellent faculty and staff and enhance the supplies and equipment used to deliver a quality education.

The remarkable growth shown by the endowment during the bull market has slowed somewhat during the past year. What is remarkable, however, is that the college's portfolio came through the fall adjustment of the market with assets decreasing less than 10 percent. Given the three-year performance of the college's three endowment managers, the Trustees decided to consolidate the college's holdings to two—First Union Capital Management and NCNB Capital Trust—given the positive performance of these two managers.

Through the lead of the Buildings and Grounds Committee of the Board of Trustees, the college has begun to focus on the needs and enhancement of the physical plant. A complete facilities audit has been prepared and is guiding the yearly cycle of renewal and replacement. Through the State of North Carolina and Exxon, the college may be able to receive up to $350,000 a year for the next several years to improve the energy efficiency of the plant.

The Board has adopted the Campus Facilities Master Plan developed by the college community with the help of Professor Ernst Schwidder of Pacific Lutheran University. The first construction related to this plan is beginning this fall with the creation of paved and landscaped parking lots next to the football stadium and across from the college on Seventh Street, N.E.

It must be emphasized, however, that the college's financial position is strong and that Lenoir-Rhyne uses all available revenues in providing a quality education. The success of the Centennial Campaign and an increase in annual giving are essential to maintain and strengthen the Lenoir-Rhyne experience.

Research & Planning

Advances in institutional research and planning during the past year brought Lenoir-Rhyne closer to the realization of three major objectives: a planning process, a design for campus improvement and an institutional-effectiveness program.

The college two years ago undertook the perfection of an improved institution-wide planning process. Unlike previous projects—which generated five- or 10-year plans subject to early obsolescence—the current effort aims to develop a continuous planning cycle which annually updates a three-year plan.

Under the leadership of a 13-member Planning Committee, the college completed, in the spring of this year, its first plan through the new process. During the current year, elements of the process will be refined so that even sharper objectives will be projected as the plan is updated.

The centerpiece of the planning package is a campus plan. During the year, various segments of the institution reviewed and evaluated the proposal. The result was a general institutional commitment to move, in the coming years, toward a campus characterized by pedestrian malls connecting a series of gathering places and focal points. Automobile traffic and parking, in general, will be channeled to landscaped off-street areas on the inner-campus periphery. First steps in constructing the improved parking areas have begun, and initial phases of the campus improvement may be completed during the current year.

In addition to campus and financial planning, the college began designing a process for assessing its effectiveness. A special eight-member committee inaugurated studies, met with consultants and evaluated suggestions from the campus community. It also led two campus-wide discussions and conducted a workshop on the topic. This year, it is expected that assessment models—both for the institution and for its key units—will be fashioned and tested, leading to implementation in 1989-90.

Development Operations

A special word of appreciation to those individuals, companies and other agencies who have been a part of our successful development program during 1987-88. We are grateful to all the constituents who work together to make this college one of the best.

While total giving was down slightly from the previous year, support for the current operations needs of the college totaled $1,076,149, up approximately $80,000.

The college's endowment gifts totaled $431,427 and included the establishment of the following new named funds: Albert McCoy Allran Scholarship, Bickley-Horner Scholarship, Dr. David Y. P. Chou Scholarship, Fannie Farris Endowment, Frances W. Fitz Scholarship, Marcus and W. H. Little Endowment, Mabel Reed Rudisill Endowment, Herbert H. and Lucille O. Sloop Scholarship, and Perry F. and Lottie S. Stafford Scholarship.

Total Loyalty Fund giving has increased 86 percent over the past five years.

Gifts for building-related projects totaled $87,915.

At the annual Honors and Awards Convocation, the sponsors and recipients of the various endowed funds and awards were recognized. This was the first such event, and plans are being made to continue it in the future.

The Codicil Club is designed to assist in the promotion and recognition of those people who have named the college as a beneficiary in their wills or some other deferred-giving vehicle. Expectancies in these provisions have a known value in excess of $5 million.

The creation of the Office of Annual Giving has helped increase Loyalty Fund success and related annual gifts. Primary goals within that office are to increase both the percentage of giving by alumni, as well as to increase the total dollar support from all donors. Total Loyalty Fund giving has increased 86 percent over the past five years. During the year, the Class of 1962 became the first class to achieve the 25th class-reunion goal of $25,000 for Loyalty Fund.

The Office of Alumni and Parents Relations operated without a full-time director five months during the 1987-88 year. However, the programs of the Alumni Association and Parents Council continued to receive careful attention from a dedicated office staff. Chapter development, homecoming and Alumni Appreciation Day were major events during the year.

The Office of Church Relations provided special support for a number of church-college events during the year, including the constituting convention of the new Evangelical Lutheran Church in America in North Carolina, Lutheran Church Women convention and a number of workshops for pastors, youth and others. Lenoir-Rhyne Sunday was held across the Synod on April 17.

The Foundations and Grants Office continues to seek special funding for projects from corporate and family foundations and other funding sources. Formal proposals during the past year totaled over $2.2 million, with responses totaling almost $350,000.

This year, the college has seen evidence of more national publicity. The Council of Independent Colleges' selection of Lenoir-Rhyne to a list of 10 colleges with high faculty morale has gained recognition in a number of national publications. In addition, the Piedmont Airlines in-flight publication, PACE, featured Hickory in its April issue, with much coverage being given to Lenoir-Rhyne within those pages. Such publicity is critical to the college's ability to be competitive.

The continuing challenge for the development staff is to work to ensure that Lenoir-Rhyne's image is understood and that the college moves away from the stigma of being a "well-kept secret."

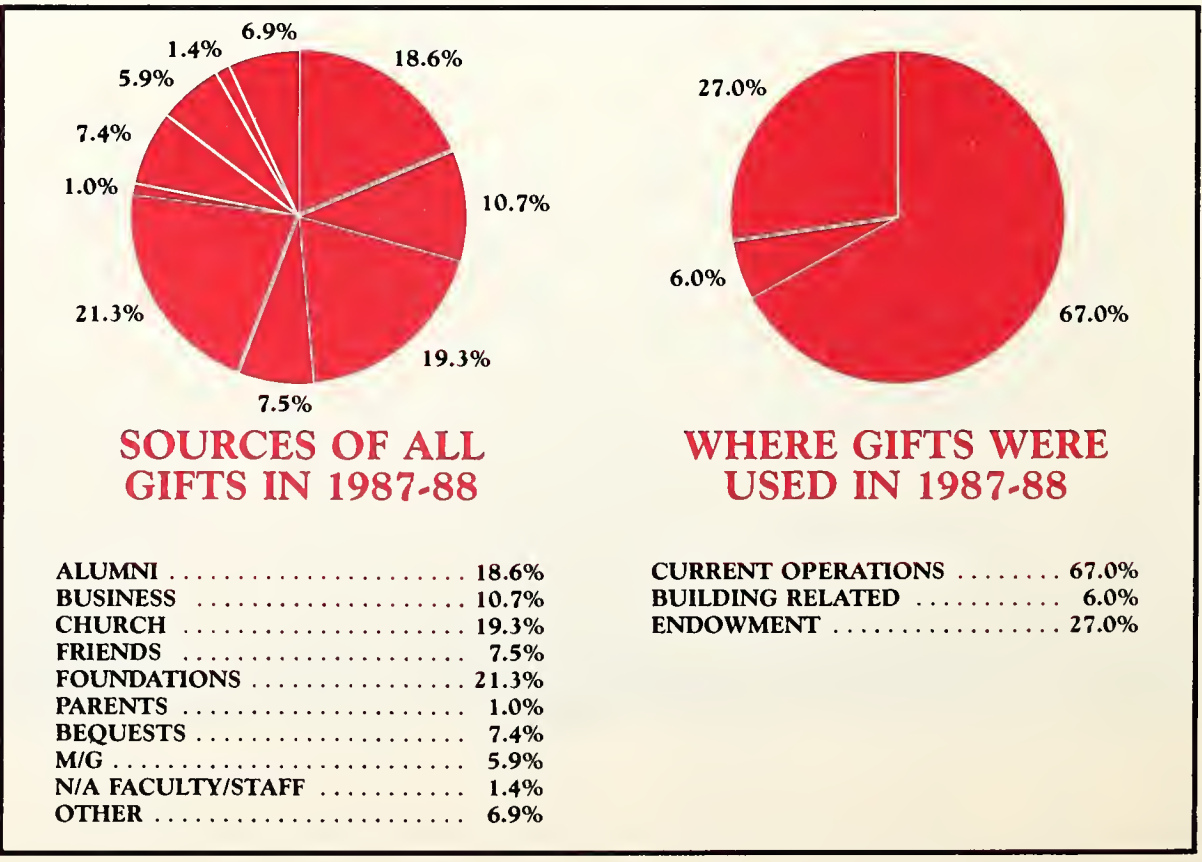

Competition for voluntary gifts continues to increase with both community colleges and public pre-college school systems more aggressively seeking financial support from the private sector.

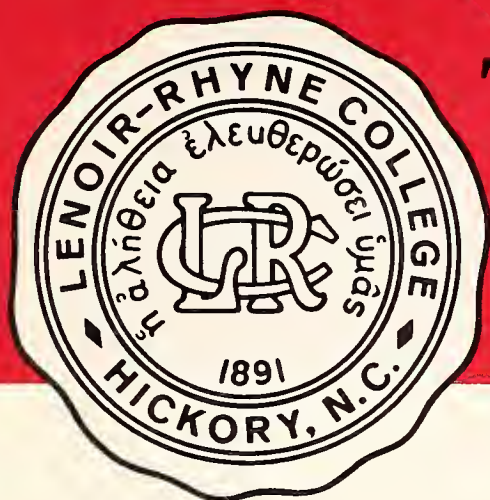

Within our own "family," the addition of professional staff should help tell the Lenoir-Rhyne story more effectively as we seek to increase the participation of our alumni and other constituents in the programs and needs of the college.

The Centennial Campaign is a great opportunity for increasing that participation.

Clarence L. Pugh
Vice President for Development

The Centennial Campaign Case Statement

Lenoir-Rhyne College is approaching its 100th birthday with a continued vision for excellence in education. The college's first 96 years have been filled with challenges, and the responses to these challenges have been extremely positive. With tremendous competition for students, Lenoir-Rhyne currently enjoys a record enrollment of 1,612, and a recent Charlotte Observer survey revealed that the 1986-87 freshman class SAT scores ranked fifth among North Carolina private colleges with over 1,100 enrollment. The Council of Independent Colleges has cited Lenoir-Rhyne nationally for an outstanding work environment and the sense of satisfaction which exists among faculty.

Lenoir-Rhyne's past success can be attributed to its people, its sense of community and its academic offerings, which are relevant for today's market. The college's vision also recognizes a need for continued effective planning. During the next five years, a major centennial fund-raising campaign will address these priorities within the current plan.

- Additional financial aid through both need-based and merit-based endowment funds will enable the college to meet the needs of all students who seek to learn and live at Lenoir-Rhyne, as well as provide new opportunities for foreign study.

- A quality student body deserves a quality and fairly-compensated faculty. Additional endowment for faculty development will permit the college to attract and retain the best teachers.

- The campus and its accompanying facilities must be attractive, functional and well-maintained. Plans include campus-wide beautification and major revitalization programs in dormitories, classroom buildings and athletic facilities.

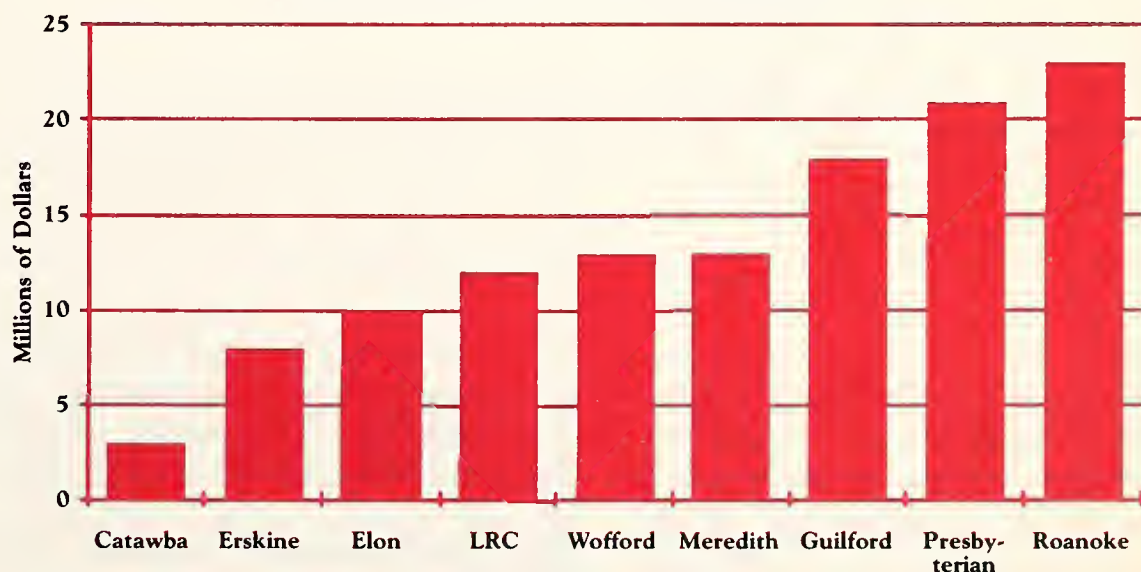

- Gift support for current operations must increase over the next five years to keep pace with inflation and to keep tuition fees competitive.

Lenoir-Rhyne is fortunate to enjoy a history of generous support from all its constituents, especially from friends and businesses in the Catawba Valley, its alumni and the Lutheran Church. Recent campaigns of the '70s and early '80s raised $15 million and enabled the college to increase its endowment six-fold and to enlarge its physical plant facilities. Since 1983, Lenoir-Rhyne supporters have continued to invest in the college with annual and capital gifts of almost $8 million.

Preliminary estimates of the college's identified priority needs over the next five years yield an approximate cost of $24 million. To meet these needs will require the continuing good stewardship of funds entrusted to the college to accomplish its mission, increased annual on-going gift support, and the conduct of a major capital gifts fund-raising campaign. The proposed campaign will begin in 1988 and will culminate with the commemoration of the Lenoir-Rhyne Centennial in 1991. Plans are to seek thoughtful and proportionate pledge subscriptions from interested corporations, foundations, organizations, alumni and friends of the college, congregations and faculty-staff, payable over a three or four tax-year period.

ENDOWMENT COMPARISON

Campaign Progress

Based on the above statement of need and preliminary case for support, the Board of Trustees adopted, in March, a tentative $24 million minimum goal for the Centennial Campaign.

The decision followed a favorable report on the feasibility of such a campaign as presented by T. Al Wheeler, fund-raising counsel. The campaign is to be conducted in two phases and completed by mid-1993. Additional details of the campaign projected timetable are listed elsewhere in this report.

To date, campaign leadership includes: general chairman, Harley F. Shuford Sr.; Phase I chairman, David W. Hoyle; Primary Gifts chairman, George S. Blackwelder Jr.; Special Gifts chairman, Charles M. Snipes; Community Gifts chairman, Carolyn S. Moretz; Major Gifts chairman, James Phillips; Alumni/Parent/Friends chairman, John David Moose; and Phase II chairman, Brady Y. Faggart Jr.

In April, the faculty-staff campaign was conducted as part of the Primary Gifts Division. While the campaign is not yet complete, more than $353,000 has been pledged toward a goal of $250,000. Profound thanks are due to Rufus Moretz, chairman of the campus effort, and his organization for a most encouraging and successful beginning.

With the public launch tentatively set for mid-November, Lenoir-Rhyne's Centennial Campaign is designed to ensure that this College serves its constituents with continuing strength as one of the nation's finest institutions.

1987-88 Loyalty Fund Campaign

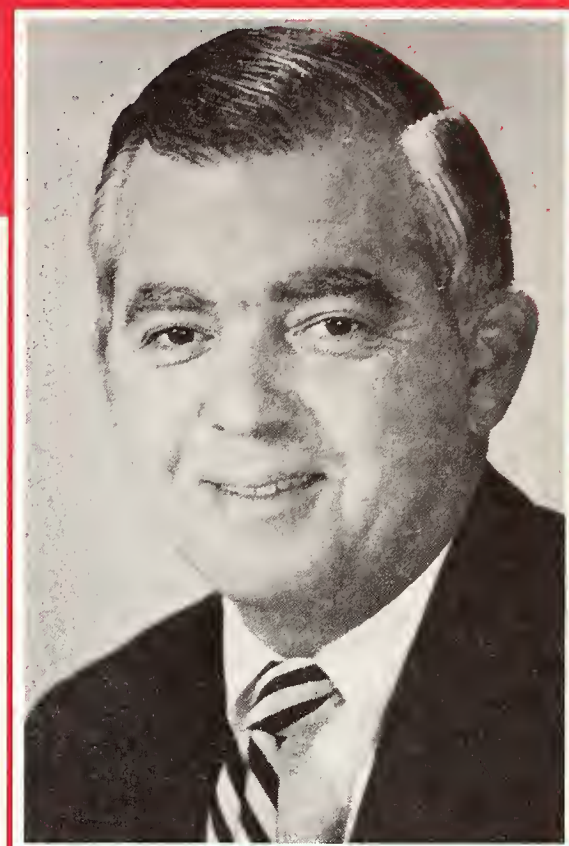

The Loyalty Fund has successfully completed the transition from the calendar year to the fiscal-year basis for recording gifts received by the college. This 17-month Loyalty Fund produced some outstanding results. These include:

- The 1987 total was increased by $90,000 over the amount received in 1986.
- Alumni donors increased (but we still have a long way to go!).
- The 1987 phonathon brought in $53,000 in pledges, with 75 percent of these pledges paid.
- The volunteer boards, led by the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association, took a leadership roll in the percentage of members giving to the Loyalty Fund.

- Parents' giving and Senior Class gifts continue to grow.

Greensboro Couple Chair 1988-89 Loyalty Fund

The Dassows

A Greensboro couple have been named chairpersons for the 1988-89 Lenoir-Rhyne College Loyalty Fund campaign.

Madeleine and Duane Dassow, 1975 graduates of the school, will help offer leadership to a campaign that has a goal of $622,000, including a goal of $250,000 for alumni.

Mr. Dassow is treasurer of New Home Building Supply Company of Greensboro and a member of the Greater Greensboro Home Builders Association. An active church and community volunteer, Mrs. Dassow serves as president of the Winston-Salem ZTA alumni group and is a member of the Triad Pan-Hellenic Council.

The Dassows have two children—Kelly and Patrick. They are members of First Lutheran Church in Greensboro.

"We're delighted to have the Dassows take such important roles in the Loyalty Fund," said Dianne Ledbetter, director of annual giving at Lenoir-Rhyne. "I'm impressed with their enthusiasm and commitment to the college. We will make great strides this year under their leadership."
